DE LONG AND HIS MEN.

CONDITION OF THE BODIES WHEN FOUND. MORTALITY FROM COLD AND HUNGER—FOUND BURIED IN THE SNOW—THE SEARCH FOR CHIPP'S PARTY.

The bodies of De Long and his men, eleven in number, were found by Engineer Melville not far from where Noras and Ninderman left the party in search of help. De Long's hand was sticking out of the snow. They had all evidently suffered greatly from exposure and hunger, the hands of several being burned as if, while dying, they had crawled into the fire. The bodies were buried in a mass of wood on the top of a hill near by, and a huge cross was set up to mark the spot. The search for the party of Lieutenant Chipp was then continued, but, up to the date of the dispatch, without result. Melville, however, had not yet returned.

EVIDENCES OF GREAT SUFFERING. THE BODIES DEPOSITED BY MELVILLE IN A WOODEN MUSEUM ON A HILL—NO THINGS AS YET OF CHIPP.

(By Cable to The Herald.) LONDON, June 19.—W. H. Gilder, The Herald correspondent with the Rodgers, sends the following dispatch, dated Lena Delta, April 12, 1882: "Melville found the bodies of De Long's party on March 23. They were in two places, 500 and 1,000 yards from the wreck of the Seow. Melville's search party first started from the supply depot [here two words are unintelligible] to follow Ninderman's route from Usterla to Mot Vai, and afterward from Mot Vai back toward Usterla. [The following sentence is again unintelligible.] They stopped at the place which Ninderman and Noras passed the first day after they left De Long, feeling sure that the others had not got much further. There they found the wreck, and, following along the bank they came upon a rifle barrel hung upon four sticks [here six words are unintelligible].

"They set the natives digging on each side of the sticks, and they soon came upon two bodies under eight feet of snow. While these men were digging toward the east Melville went on along the bank, twenty feet above the river, to find a place to take bearings. He then saw a camp kettle and the remains of a fire about a thousand yards from the tent, and approaching, nearly stumbled upon De Long's hand sticking out of the snow about thirty feet from the edge of the bank. Here, under about a foot of snow, they found the bodies of De Long and Ambler about three feet apart, and Ah Sam lying at their feet, all partially covered by pieces of tent and a few pieces of blanket. All the others of the party they found at the place where the tent was pitched. Lee and Koch were close by in a cleft in the bank toward the west. Two boxes of records, with the medicine chest and a flag on a staff, were beside the tent.

"None of the dead had boots. Their feet were covered with rags tied on. In the pockets of all were pieces of hard skin and of the clothing which they had been eating. The hands of all were more or less burned, and it looked as if when dying they had crawled into the fire. Boyd lying over the fire and his clothing being burned through to the skin, which was not burned. Collins's face was covered with blood.

"All the bodies were carried to the top of a hill 300 feet high, about forty yards to the southwest from where they were found, and there interred in a mausoleum constructed of wood from the Seow, built in the form of a pyramid twenty-two feet long and seven high, surrounded by a cross twenty-two feet high, and a foot square, hewn out of driftwood, and conspicuous at a distance of twenty yards. The mausoleum was covered with stones and is to be sited in the spring. The cross is inscribed with the record and names of the dead, out by the search party.

"After completing the tomb the party separated to search the delta for traces of Chipp's people. Melville went to the northwest part of the delta and west as far as the Olek River; Ninderman took the center and Bartlett the northeast. Ninderman and Bartlett found nothing. Melville has not yet returned. The search is to be extended to Cape Bergha and the bay of that name. They expect to finish in time to reach Yakutsk or Verkhokansk before the rivers break up. If they do not finish before that time they will have to retreat to the foot of the hills and mountains with the natives until the water falls, as the whole of the delta is covered with water in spring to a height of four feet and in some places to twenty feet above the level of the river. Otherwise they would have buried the dead where they found them."

THE SITUATION IN EGYPT.

REPORTS ABOUT THE CONFERENCE. ALEXANDRIA QUIET—BEGIN IN EGYPTIAN STOCKS—STANDSTILL MADE IN PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, June 19.—A dispatch to The Times from Alexandria states that the banks are mostly prepared to resist a strike. The Ottoman Bank has converted into an armory. The entrances to the bank are blocked by piles of silk, and the clerks are well supplied with provisions. They also have ropes ready to haul up refugees from the streets. Arabi Pacha has thanked the Khedive for his appointment as a member of the Ministry. There is no doubt that he is restraining every nerve to maintain order. He is beginning to realize that he has provoked the exodus of the Europeans, which will run the country. The Sub-Minister of Justice, who is conducting the inquiry into the cause of the riots in Alexandria, states that he cannot justly punish the prisoners as long as he is unable to arrest the instigators of their crimes. He names Arabi Pacha as the chief instigator.

Alarm is felt in Ismailia because of the presence in the neighborhood of large numbers of Bedouin Arabs, who have lately approached close to the town, and have been observed hovering along the unguarded banks of the canal.

It is stated in diplomatic circles that the Powers will take no military measures until the Conference has formulated its decisions, unless there should be further riots. Sir Edward Malet, the British Consul-General, is ill with fever and dysentery.

The Porte has received a dispatch from Derwish Pacha reporting the state of affairs in Egypt as very satisfactory. He says that Arabi Pacha strictly obeys the Khedive's commands. He thinks, therefore, that the conference would be inopportune.

Lord Dufferin, the British Ambassador, has made a fresh report on the situation in Egypt, insisting upon an immediate reply on the question of a conference. Germany strongly advises the Porte to assent to the holding of a conference.

There has been considerable excitement on the London Stock Exchange and the Paris Bourse today in consequence of a decline in Egyptian stocks and Suez Canal shares. In London unified stock fell five per cent.

In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone informed Sir Stafford Northcote that the conference would deal with the condition of Egypt, and not with the Suez Canal.

Sir Charles Dilke, Under Foreign Secretary, stated that Germany, Austria and Russia had accepted the proposal for a conference. Italy had previously declared that she would follow the course of the other Powers. Very full instructions, he said, were sent to Admiral Seymour on Friday, and were sufficient to preserve British interests in Alexandria in case of renewed disturbances.

LONDON, June 20.—Various special dispatches received here state that Turkey will not consent to participate in the Conference.

A dispatch to The Times from Constantinople says: "The representatives of the Powers have interviewed Said Pacha, Minister of Foreign Affairs, on the subject of the Conference. He unambiguously and categorically refused to assent to the Conference on the ground that it was unnecessary and inconsistent with the interests of Turkey."

Sir Stansfeld's Alexandria correspondent telegraphs that Iskander Pacha has refused to accept as

WHAT INTERESTS LONDON.

FENIAN AND EGYPTIAN TOPICS. WALSH, THE CLERKENWELL PRISONER, SUPPOSED TO BE AN AGENT OF O'DONOVAN ROSSA—DISSENT WITH THE GOVERNMENT'S EGYPTIAN POLICY.

(By Cable to The Tribune.) LONDON, June 19.—No further arrests were made up to a late hour to-night in connection with the seizure of arms in Clerkenwell. The prisoner Walsh was examined before a magistrate this afternoon, but nothing material was elicited beyond the facts already made public. The prisoner was remanded for a week without bail. The police have been severely censured by the newspapers for acting so precipitately in the matter, when a quiet surveillance of the premises for a week or two might have resulted in the capture of the whole gang of conspirators. Walsh is strongly suspected of being the "Head Centre" of the Fenian organization in the metropolis and one of the agents of O'Donovan Rossa's skirmishing fund. The authorities assert that they have every expectation of making further arrests immediately.

Although outside of financial and Parliamentary circles the complications in Egypt have surprised failed as yet to arrest public attention, evidences are becoming apparent of dissatisfaction at the procrastinating, laissez faire policy of the Government; and The Standard to-day, taking the anniversary of the battle of Waterloo as the text for a comparison between the reputation of Great Britain in 1815 and 1882, remarks that in June, 1815, all Europe was looking to England for assistance; and that in June, 1882, England is looking for assistance to all Europe. In June, 1815, not the greatest Power in the world dared to offer the slightest insult to the British flag; in June, 1882, one sees British seamen murdered within gunshot of a British fleet and their bodies buried at sea for prudential reasons, without anything being done to show that the English people are sensible of having suffered any injury. Would the England of 1815, it asks, have borne for a moment what the England of 1882 seems to be expected to endure with resignation?

GENERAL FOREIGN NEWS.

ENGLAND AND IRELAND.

LONDON, June 19.—A dispatch to the Press Association from Paris says that the admission of civilians to all the military barracks in Ireland has been prohibited. The sentries have been doubled and the night watches increased. The greatest precautions are being taken against explosives being carried into military quarters.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal says the military telegraph clerks in the Royal Barracks are required to sleep next to their instruments.

In the House of Commons this afternoon Mr. Childers, Secretary of State for War, said that none of the arms seized in Clerkenwell were manufactured by or for the Government.

Baron de Marnes gave notice that he would ask Mr. Gladstone on Thursday whether or not the United States Government had refused to agree to the expulsion of American suspects from Ireland as a condition for their release.

The House in Committee resumed debate on the Treason Bill. The ninth clause of the bill, providing for the arrest of strangers found under suspicious circumstances, was adopted by a vote of 194 to 131. Clause 10, directing the seizure of newspapers containing matter tending to the commission of treason, was adopted by a vote of 192 to 126.

THE HAMILTON PALACE SALE.

LONDON, June 19.—The Prince of Wales and the Duke of Albany were present at the Hamilton Palace sale to-day, and inspected the collection of porcelain, a pair of fine Mandarin vases brought 1,150 guineas. An oblong box, with foliage and flowers in a landscape and ornaments in silver and gilt, brought 1,317 guineas, and a black lacquer box, which formerly belonged to a pair of vases, a pair of vases and covers with enameled flowers and ornaments in brilliant colors sold for 500 guineas. Another pair of vases, known as the "China cabinet," and deep ruby colored vases, brought 400 guineas.

MATERIAL PROGRESS OF AMERICA.

LONDON, June 19.—The Times, in a leading article on the progress of America, says that if there were no direct evidence forthcoming of the reality and rapidity of material progress in the United States it could be found in the singular absence of excitement in America politics. What is especially remarkable in the present development of American energy and success is the absence of any excitement in the political sphere. Federal representation bears testimony to the political capacity of the people, and affords good ground for the belief that the country is not only a land of material progress, but a land of intellectual and moral progress.

INJURED BY A COLLISION.

DANVILLE, Va., June 19.—The south-bound mail train on the Virginia Midland ran off on an open switch this morning at Fall Creek Station, about six miles from Danville, and came in collision with a number of coal cars. The coal cars were broken to pieces, and the engine and several cars attached were hurled down a embankment. Brown, who was on the engine, had his hand crushed and bruised. Mail Agent Cook was knocked senseless.
